Client:

Sotheby's

Description:

Sotheby's has been located in New Bond Street, London since 1917 and has set an unrivalled reputation for the sales of works of art and fine antiques

Due to its global success Sotheby's has had to expand its London Salesroom operations considerably over the last 90 years and now encompasses a mixed property portfolio around New Bond Street, George Street and Bourdon Street.

The range of buildings and their varied heating, air conditioning, ventilation and humidity requirements provide a unique set of operational circumstances not found in most properties.

Hemlow provide the engineering service and management structure to maintain and coordinate these key central services with two engineers on site five days a week, however the brand of Sotheby's and its extensive range of activities including public access for viewings, auction days and evening functions means that our provision can be 24-hours cover at a moments notice.

We are very pleased, that following a consultant led competitive re-tender process, to be able to continue providing these services for another termed period

This contract is managed and coordinated via our Slough operations team.
