

CPD UK Approved Seminar

For More Information Contact:

Dave Green
dave.green@hemlow.com

The CPD Standard

The CPD Certification Service is an independent body operating across all market sectors and in support of all professional institutions, bodies and societies.

The prime role of the CPD Certification Service is to certify that the content of a training course, papers delivered at conferences and other educationally beneficial material conforms to universally accepted guidelines.

Our Presentation “An Overview of Air Conditioning in Commercial Offices”

Is a condensed section of an internal engineering training module, simplified to meet the guidance and timeline for the CPD accreditation process.

We are pleased to be able to offer our approved seminar across a wide selection of property sectors.

It provides a detailed yet simplistic look at the requirements of fully air conditioning an office space starting with air handling, control, conditioning of the supply air, distribution and final conditioning of the occupied space to provide a fully air conditioned environment whilst taking into account air quality, air quantity, temperature control, humidity and different types of terminal unit.

The presentation is suitable as a breakfast or lunchtime briefing taking approximately 50 minutes followed by an open question and answers session.

We can tailor the presentation to individual client needs and have a range of additional information that can be bolted on to end the presentation to specific requirements. Recent seminars have included a look at topical current legislation FGas, EPC's, TM surveys and environmental sustainability.

It has proved useful to a wide variety of property professionals from owners to agents, property managers to security guards across all sectors.